Our commitment

On July 1, 2011, the Bribery Act 2010 went into effect with the intention of combating bribery and corruption in both the public and commercial sectors. Bribery is described as the providing or receiving of a benefit, whether financial or otherwise, in exchange for carrying out a duty or activity improperly.

ABL 1Touch is committed to applying the highest standards of ethical conduct, following good business practices and having robust controls in place to prevent bribery. However, our ethos doesn't allow us to be complacent. Under no circumstances is the giving, offering, receiving, or soliciting of a bribe tolerable and acceptable, and the board shall not tolerate this in any form.

Zero tolerance approach

The Anti-bribery Policy, as well as a number of other business policies and procedural documentation that may be developed, go into more depth about our tolerance approach to bribery and corruption. All employees, including non-executives, contractors, agents, lawyers, or consultants that work or represent our organization are subject to this.

Everyone is in charge of understanding the standards of behaviour required of them, as well as making sure they always abide by all of our policies and procedures. This contains rules pertaining to gift-acceptance, hospitality, and procurement.

Anti-bribery measures

All employees and those operating on behalf of the organisation must contribute to the detection and eradication of bribery in order for the anti-bribery measures to be successful. Therefore, it is urged for all employees and anyone else acting for or on behalf of the organisation to disclose any suspected bribery in accordance with the reporting guidelines outlined in the Bribery and Corruption Policy.

Our board will take appropriate measures and regard any act of bribery committed by a member or staff. Please get in touch with our Compliance Officer if you have any questions or concerns about bribery being committed in our company.
